

My Fellow Americans

By Harry Prichett

To my fellow Americans,

It has come to my attention that some of you have doubted my service in the United States Senate. I write to you now, not in my defense, but to try to clarify the chaos that has caused, what seems to be a great misunderstanding.

Let me first address the rumors of my affairs with fellow senators, lobbyists, interns and the general public both, male and female. The rumors are true. I have on many occasions had sexual relations with many of you and others. I have posted a list on my website. Let me be very clear. I never, at any time, planned to fulfill the promises I made in return for sex or money. If it's any consolation to any of you, my wife Rebecca has filed for divorce and my children refuse to speak with me.

In regard to my not fulfilling my duties as a United States Senator, those allegations too are true. Over the past three and a half years I have done very little for neither our great country nor my state. In fact, I would say I did nothing. I didn't, nor could I; foresee the many temptations that this office would offer. The free movies, furniture, art and limo rides were too good to "just say no."

When I first ran for Senate I had dreams of making a difference, for standing up for the "little guy." Over time I realized, fuck that. Fuck the little guy. It's too complicated, too boring, too damn tiring. Instead I took advantage for my own personal benefit. I traveled this great country and the world. I ate at the finest restaurants. I met our great leaders and had sex with most of them.

I come to you now, not for sympathy, nor do I wish to apologize, but for your vote in the upcoming November election. I'm really having a terrific time and I don't want it to end. I know my opponent would like you to believe he will hear your cries for better education, cleaner air and a safer planet. Can't we just let the rest of the Senate deal with that?

I thank you for your time and continued support. God bless you, God bless America and God bless the fantastic life I'm leading.
